Abstract

A system for production and/or processing of data bursts has at least two series-connected modules, with data (Data) and information (Enable) relating to the validity of the data (Data) being transmitted from a first module (A) to an adjacent second module (B), and information (Read) relating to the reception of valid data

5   being transmitted from the second module (B) to the first module (A).